

WOMAN BLAMED IN THE BALLOU MURDER CASE

Bridgeport, Conn., July 28.—"Waldo Ballou came to his death as the result of criminal action of Mrs. Helen Angle."

Summarized, this is the finding announced today of Coroner Phelan in the mysterious death of the prominent Stamford, Conn., business man and politician. Mrs. Angle, now at her father's home in Maine, will be brought back here at once, it was stated, to face a grand jury investigation of Ballou's death.

Coroner Phelan's report told of the finding of bloodstains in Mrs. Angle's apartment, in front of which the body of Ballou was found in a pool of blood. The report scored Mrs. Angle for refusing to testify at the inquest over Ballou's death.

FOURTEEN MORE GIRLS ARE PATROLED TO STATION

Fourteen more waitresses were arrested for picketing in front of Knab's loop lunchrooms this noon. The patrol wagon made several trips carrying the girls to the S. Clark street police station where they were immediately released on bond.

Elizabeth Maloney, business agent of the waitresses, has presented affidavits showing that girl had been made ill by the treatment they received from the police yesterday when 13 of them were cooped up in one narrow cell at the South Clark street station. The police chief said he would confer with Capt. Gibbons over the situation.

"Knab's wagon" made the rounds again yesterday, picking up thirteen girls picketing in front of the restaurants. The young women were taken to the South Clark street police station and placed in a stuffy room for two hours. At the end of this time four of them were ill and had to be assisted to their homes.

"The agreement with Judge Scully was to the effect that girls arrested for picketing were to be booked and released as soon as they reached the station. The police are bending every effort to break the strike by arresting our pickets," said Hope Thompson, attorney for the union.

SMEAR IT ON!

By Jim Manee.

There's been raspberries and currants,

Lots of peaches and some pears,
Lying 'round about the kitchen,
Mingled in with wife's affairs.

It's enough to make one happy,
It's a cinch, folks, that I am,
'Cause I know that through the winter

We will have a lot of jam.

P. S.—"Gosh! There is only one can of strawberry preserves left."

CHICAGO GRAIN.—War news caused jump in wheat, corn, oats and provisions.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.—Opening lower and news of declaration of war by Austria increased selling, weakening prices. Small recoveries were noted later.

THERE'S A TAX WAR, TOO

State's Attorney Hoyne today declared war on 3,000 tax dodgers. Many complaints will be filed with board of review this week.

TODAY'S HEALTHOGRAM

Some refrigerator information—As metal is a better heat conductor than wood, a metal refrigerator will require more insulation than a wooden one. The lining of the refrigerator should be metal, porcelain, glass, enamel or some other easily cleaned, dirt-showing substance.

WEATHER FORECAST

Fair tonight and Wednesday; no important change in temperature; moderate northeasterly winds. Temperature Monday—Highest, 82; lowest, 71.
